LICENSE OR NO LICENSE IN FREDERICKSBURG

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
FREDERICKSBURG, VA., June 29.—
The campaign on the question of license or no license to sell intoxicating drinks in this city closed to-night, after having been waged most carnestly by advocates of both sides of question for weeks. Judge R. T. W. Duke, of Charlottesville, addressed a large crowd at the courthouse to-night in opposition to local option and treated the subject from a business standpoint.

He undertook in vigorous language to show that prohibition is a failure, and was frequently applauded with enthusiasm. The election will take place tomorrow, and the indications are that the wets will win.

Judge A. W. Wallace, in introducing Judge Duke, made a stirring speech, which was carnestly applauded.
